DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1, 4-6, 8 and 23-26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Nakai et al. US 2002/0102404.
3. The rejection set forth under 35 USC 103 in the paper mailed 7/3/08 is deemed proper and is herein repeated.
4. Applicants newly amended claims and remarks filed in support thereof have been fully considered but have been found not persuasive with respect to the claims rejected herein. Specifically, the rejected claims do not have the distinguishing limitations argued to render the invention patentably distinct from the cited patent. These claims are not limited to the polyvinylidene chloride copolymers. The polymers listed at [0087]-[0900] render obvious those polymers claimed.
5. Claims 1-8 and 23-30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kasahara et al. US 2004/0092639.
6. This patent teaches polyvinylidene chloride copolymers at [0119]. Calcium carbonate having the surface area claimed and treated with the surface treating agents is shown in example 1. The claimed surfactants are shown at [0112]-[0113]. The difference between the claimed invention and the cited art is the art lacks an anticipatory example. The claims are prima facie obvious given that each of the claimed components are disclosed and one is motivated to use them in combination given the direct suggestion to do so.
